The art of memory (Latin: ars memoriae) is any of a number of loosely associated mnemonic principles and techniques used to organize memory impressions, improve recall, and assist in the combination and 'invention' of ideas. An alternative and frequently used term is "Ars Memorativa" which is also often translated as "art of memory" although its more literal meaning is "Memorative Art".

This fourth 'world of images' is where new entities – the 'suspended forms' (muthul mu'allaaqa) – exist and which post-mortem souls grasp with their imagination. Suhrawardi actually expands on Avicenna's suggestion that imagination has an important eschatological function to explain the fate of souls in the Afterlife (cf. van Lit ...

Humera Quddoos explains why transference provides a rich and fertile field for therapeutic work. Therapeutic space has three fields within it: one occupied by the client, one by the therapist, and a third space that's co-created by the therapist and client and overlaps into each of their personal spaces.1 Transference and countertransference arise in the individual spaces but inhabit and ...

To the astrologer it is a map of revelatory symbols; either way it evokes an imaginal space." The focus on techniques has its place, but what of the role of the imagination which in astrology is the key to unlocking the "sacred shards of the soul"? To answer that question, we must go to another place beyond the intellect.
