Claire Of The Sea Light

Claire of the Sea Light is the type of unforgettable novel that pulls at the heartstrings and produces an almost unbearable degree of searing emotion. Claire Limye Lanme Faustin is the title character, and she is, of course, focal to the narrative, but she also serves as the lightning rod from which multiple storylines are illuminated.

Claire of the Sea Light by Edwidge Danticat

In Claire of the Sea Light, Danticat folds the story into a package so preciously tight that we can tuck it in our hearts and keep it close and warm.” —Nikki Giovanni “ [Has] the feel of a fairy tale. But its ethereal qualities are offset by its stark portrayal of life in small-town Haiti; the combination makes for a lovely book.”

CLAIRE OF THE SEA LIGHT | Kirkus Reviews

Much of the lyricism and power of Claire of the Sea Light derives from the descriptions of its Haitian setting: of the sea, the mountains, the flowers, the "sparkly feathers from angel wings" that Claire searches for after her waking dreams (236). Would the book work in any other place, either in the Caribbean or beyond?
